

NPCC gets new corporate identity; eyes Dh4.2b sales

Haseeb Haider

ABU DHABI — Abu Dhabi-owned National Petroleum Construction Company (NPCC), which has become a regional player in engineering, procurement and construction sector has launched its new corporate brand identity, as it is aggressively expanding its presence in the UAE and entering into the region.

The identity was launched by Hussain Al Nowais, chairman of NPCC at an event attended by senior executives from oil and gas industry, contractors, suppliers, service companies and financial institutions.

The EPC firm is bullish on new business as against Dh3 billion in sales in 2013, the sales are projected to climb to Dh4.2 billion in 2014.

"In 2015, the sales are projected to grow stronger to Dh6 billion," said Aqeel Madhi, chief executive officer of NPCC, while speaking to reporters at the event. The sales will grow more robust to Dh7 billion in 2016, he said.

"NPCC is an example of success under the leadership of the President, Hish Highness Shaikh

Chairman of NPCC Hussain Al Nowais launches the firm's new identity at an event attended by senior executives from the oil and gas industry, contractors and suppliers. — Supplied photo

Khalifa bin Zayed Al Nahyan. A business unit of Senaat, NPCC is contributing to Abu Dhabi's industrial success in line with the Abu Dhabi Economic Vision 2030. Sennat is focusing on growing non-oil GDP of Abu Dhabi," said Hussain Al Nowais.

While addressing at the event, Aqeel Madhi reiterated that the company stood up to the challenges and played a major role in serving oil and gas sector in its growth journey over the past four decades.

NPCC has been going through a continuous development and evolution from its humble beginnings to an envied full-fledged EPC company.

The engineering, procurement and construction company has an order book of Dh7 billion as several projects are under construction phase in the Saudi Arabia, Qatar, India and the UAE.

— haseeb@khaleejtimes.com